In sprint 3, we completed 220/398 points remaining in the entire project. This means that only 178 points remain to be completed in sprint 4. However, it is worth noting that some user stories have not been completed but the team has begun working on them. This suggests that the workload may be even less that 178 in sprint 4.

In sprint 3, we outperformed sprint 2 (47) by separating tasks into smaller stories and creating stricter deadlines within the sprint. We also formed smaller groups that focused on completed tasks frontend to backend. On current performance, we expect to finish all priority stories in sprint 4.
